Stockholm's largest and most distinguished restaurant famed for its concerts since 1863.

Berns is one of Europe's outstanding restaurants, known throughout the western world for a long and distinguished tradition of good food, impeccable service, and music by popular artists. Berns is now really three restaurants in one, the Swedish, French and Chinese, each with its own individual cuisine and decor. Together they accommodate 1500 people in roomy comfort. A large orchestra with well-known soloists entertains daily from 6 p. m. to midnight. Open air terrace in the summertime.

Berns was founded in 1863 and has been a focus of Stockholm life for almost 90 years. The beautiful, lavishly decorated interiors are based on the Paris Opera style. August Strindberg, famous Swedish playwright and author, took the title of one of his greatest novels, "The Red Room", from one of the dining apartments at Berns where he and other literary and artistic greats gathered in the 1870's.

Berns is located in the very heart of Stockholm, at Berzelii Park and Norrmalmstorg — served by Tram Lines 1, 2, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 10, and 44, 52, 56 and 51.

For reservations dial 22 06 00. Open noon to midnight.

IMPRESSIONS OF STOCKHOLM

by S. F. A. Coles

The secret of Stockholm's fascination lies for me in the fact that here is one of the world's great capitals still embosomed in primal Nature.

It is this inter-related partnership of created and natural beauty which makes the approach such a memorable experience; Stockholm should be approached first by water, either from the grey-blue stretches of the Baltic or through the lovely Göta Canal and the western corner of Lake Mälaren. The visitor is then rewarded with the unforgettable vision of a noble and pleasant city rising white and gleaming from the surrounding waters.

It has often been affirmed and the truth must be repeated — it is the late Ragnar Östberg's remarkable chef-d'œuvre, the Stockholm Town Hall, that immediately rivets the gaze of all travellers arriving at the Swedish Capital. There it rises beside the Mälars lake, the beautiful tree-lined forecourt with charming statues, the long, Italianesque colonnade, the wide, satisfyingly red-brick façade, and with the massively magnificent tower topped by a graceful lantern and Sweden's three shining crowns — soaring into the broad and cloud-flecked sky.

There are many other buildings which demonstrate the progressive and corporate aesthetic culture of the Sweden of today, such as the Concert Hall in the market-place with its classic façade, below which the attenuated figures of Carl Milles' celebrated Orpheus fountain seem to be rising skywards like a bundle of lit

This is NORDISKA KOMPANIET

— Sweden's department store Number One and the House of Quality. Your visit to Stockholm is not complete without a call at "NK".

A numerous staff, always ready to serve — in your own language — will assist in making your visit as pleasant as possible.

Just ask anyone in the street, he or she will at once tell you where "NK" is situated. In the summer you must see the wonderful view from the Roof Garden, one of the loveliest in Stockholm!

torches! — the conspicuous Engelbrekt church standing on a rock at Östermalm; the stately Law Courts whose mellow brick is so admirably emphasized by the surrounding trees; the City Library, a striking example of the advanced school of modern Swedish architecture, where about seven hundred thousand volumes are ranged on open shelves; the noble Opera House in the central Gustav Adolf's Square with its equestrian statue; and round the corner, on the Nybroviken waterfront, the Royal Dramatic Theatre where citizens occasionally enjoy the sunshine seated democratically on the theatre steps, as on a Greek temple in the days of Demosthenes!

On the Norrström waterfront, although at the end, stands the National Museum with its choice collections of representative pictures and objects d'art; and if the walk — one of the most beautiful in Stockholm — is continued along the stately waterside avenue of Strandvägen, where are situated many of the embassies and legations, and across the Djurgårdsbron Bridge the huge grey mass looms into view of the Nordiska Museum containing the assembled memorials of the nation's life and history.

At the end of the elongated Arcadian island of Djurgården, with its unspoiled pastoral meadows and lovely avenues of trees, rises on the crest of a steep slope the Capital's chief park and playground, the unique and popular open-air summer resort of "museum" of Skansen.

Here on summer evenings thousands of citizens sometimes gather to sing hearty Swedish folk-songs under the leadership of an official songmaster while attendants clad in the charming peasant costumes of the various provinces carry round refreshments. On a neighbouring, thickly-wooded slope is the Thiel Gallery, containing a small but excellent collection of paintings.

In another beautiful corner of Djurgården, with crowded flower-beds running down to the water's edge, stands Waldemarsudde, formerly the Stockholm residence of the great gentleman and royal painter, the

THE NEW CITY AND THE OLD

Stockholm has many fine examples of modern business architecture, the most representative of which is perhaps the former palatial offices of the ill-fated Swedish Match Company in Västra Trädgårdsgatan, leading from the 16th century St. Jakob's church in whose delightful cemetery people sit contentedly by the worn tombstones at lunch-time reading poetry and philosophy while they eat their midday sandwiches; but mention must not be omitted of the gigantic Tennis Halls at Lidingövägen and Alvik, the latter being the largest of its kind in Europe, and the towering Nordiska Kompaniet Store in the busy Hamngatan from whose roof-garden restaurant views are obtained over the Capital rivalled only by those afforded by the Västerbron bridge and the Katarinahissen Look-out at Slussen, where are situated the headquarters of the extensive Swedish co-operative organisation, Konsum, which is based on the British Rochdale system but in scope goes far beyond it.

In the old "City between the Bridges" the tower of the Storkyrkan rises above the cluster of 16th century houses, most of which are still standing, while on a slope to the west you find the Riddarholm Church, with its tapering spire, the Swedish Pantheon, where visitors to whom the great names of history are something more than dry headings in text-books may pause by the royal sarcophagi of Gustavus Adolphus and of Charles XII.

The 17th century gave to the city the Hall of the Knights, or Palace of the Nobility, a beautiful structure in the Dutch Renaissance style by Simon and Jean de la Vallée. — Not until the 18th century was the extraordinarily imposing and symmetrically satisfying Royal Palace built by Nicodemus Tessin.

In the Old Town (Map E. 6)

The historic homes of Old Stockholm are of course to be found in the maze of narrow streets behind the Cathedral (Storkyrkan), flanked by plain and precipitous façades and many boasting baroque doorways crowned by worn pediments and architraves where the coats-of-arms of the original occupants are still in place.

In Stockholm more than fifty thousand families live in model garden settlements, sixty per cent of the city's workmen inhabit new and thoroughly up-to-date flats with central heating, laid-on hot water, bathrooms, refrigerators, mechanised wash-houses to a large extent in the many-storeyed blocks built by the "HSB" organization whose activities extend to 155 townships; while the »Kollektivhusen» service flats have solved for the professional classes the problem of running a home satisfactorily where both the wife and the husband are engaged in outside activities. Every second inhabitant is on the telephone, and the best hospital, policlinic or dental treatment is available for a few kronor a day. The aged are cared for in model establishments while schools constructed on the most enlightened principles in regard to light and fresh air supply every facility for the practice of that health-giving physical culture for which Sweden is everywhere renowned; and what facilities the schools do not provide are supplied by the Stadium, the Sports Palace, the swimming baths, and Stockholm's many large athletic grounds.....

The five principal districts of the city are:

On the north side of the Norrström:

- 1) Norrmalm, the largest and busiest section;
- 2) Östermalm and Gärde to the east, the residential quarters;
- 3) Kungsholmen, to the west, the municipal and administrative centre;

On the islands in the Norrström:

On the south mainland:

5) Södermalm, situated along the rocky shores of the Lake Mälaren and an arm of the Baltic, extending up to Stockholm itself.

The principal residential suburban districts of Stockholm are: in the west, the Bromma suburbs where the Alvik Tennis Hall, one of the largest specially built indoor tennis courts in Europe, is situated, in the south the Enskede suburbs with the extremely beautifully situated Skogskyrkogården (cemetery) and the Brännkyrka suburbs.

You haven't seen Stockholm without "Freden" visiting

• You must see "Gyldene Freden", the well-known restaurant, where the 18th century atmosphere of the great Swedish poet and troubadour Bellman still lives in its mediæval vaults. Even to-day "Gyldene Freden" is the gathering place of poets, artists and balladsingers.

To preserve this historical gem, Anders Zorn, the world-famous painter, carefully restored the house and restaurant and donated it to the Swedish Academy.

Here, in this old-world setting, you can enjoy the delights of Swedish, French and Italian culinary art.

RESTRICTIONS

The free sale for home consumption of alcoholic drinks, with the exception of beers, is prohibited in Sweden. Wines and spirits are sold through the medium of certain limited companies (System companies) — specially constituted for the purpose — each in its settled district. A definite ration is allotted to every member of the community who makes application therefor and who has attained a certain prescribed age and fulfilled certain liabilities. Foreign tourists travelling in Sweden are after application permitted, upon production of their passports at the "System's" district head office in Stockholm, Näckströmshuset 4 (D 7), to purchase a certain quantity of wines and spirits varying according to the length of stay.

General information

Spirits and wines in restaurants

Spirits (with the exception of "lättagrogg", 2½ cl of liquor mixed with at least 1/6 of a liter of water or other non-alcoholic beverage) are sold only in conjunction with meals. No sales are allowed before 12 o'clock, (on Sundays not during the time of the Morning Service); between 12 and 15 o'clock a smaller quantity, and after 15 o'clock a larger quantity, may be sold. The larger quantity, however, is only sold to male guests.

Strong wines are sold only in conjunction with a meal or with light refreshments. There are no special regulations governing the sale of light and sparkling wines (with exception of the fruitwine "Bacchi Wapen"). The sale of wines is permitted from 12 o'clock. (on Sun. not during the time of the Morning Service).

SERVICE FEE AND TIPS

Most of the Stockholm hotels have adopted a fixed service-charge of 15 % on the bill but there are some hotel establishments that retain the system of a sliding scale from 30 % — 15 % according to the size of the weekly or daily account. At still another few hotels the service-charge is included in the room rate. If a hotel porter carries luggage to or from the hotel he is entitled to payment according to established rates.

In the restaurants and the restaurant parts of the hotels the service fee or the tips are at least 10 %. It is not put down on the bill.

One of the finest sights in STOCKHOLM is in the Royal Park of Djurgården

THE BIOLOGICAL MUSEUM

The museum exhibits animal life in its natural state and in the environment in which the different species are accustomed to live. Here is presented to you a comprehensive and clear picture of the FAUNA OF SCANDINAVIA. The animals are exhibited in characteristic attitudes, often with their young or with nests and eggs.

Moreover, there is a reproduction of a RIVER VALLEY in EAST GREENLAND where you can see the higher animal world of that mysterious country, the specimens including a HERD OF MUSK OX, AN ARCTIC WOLF, A POLAR BEAR, etc.

A CAVE UP IN THE ARCTIC affords a picture of the higher animal world on SPITZBERGEN, inter alia, a gigantic WALRUS

The Museum is open daily from 10 a.m. to dusk or latest to 6 p.m. Adm. Kr. 1:—

TRAFFIC REGULATIONS.

Rule of the road: Sweden has left-hand traffic with overtaking on the right. Tramcars, however, are overtaken only on the left. Stationary tramcars, taking up passengers, may not be passed except when there is a traffic island.

Speed: There is no general speed limit for motorcars and motor cycles but speed should always be adjusted to the demands of road safety. If, occasionally, the speed is limited, this is indicated by a yellow sign with a red border and the text, e. g. 30 km. For commercial vehicles (lorries, buses, coaches etc.) the speed must not exceed

40 km/hour in towns and built-up areas

60 km/hour on the open road.

Priority at cross roads: A motorist who intends to cross or turn into a main road must give priority to the traffic on the main road. In all other cases traffic coming from the left has priority.

Tramcars always have priority and motor cars may not unnecessarily drive on the tracks.

Turning at a cross road and overtaking: A vehicle which is going to turn at a crossing must, well in advance of it, join the string of cars that is nearest to the direction of the turn. A sign must also be given with the direction indicator when turning at a cross road, when overtaking, and when turning out from the side of the road.

Horn: Audible signalling is not permitted in towns or built-up areas, except when overtaking or to prevent accidents.

One-way streets: Many streets are one-way streets. They are marked with signposts bearing a red disc with a horizontal yellow line or a round blue disc with a horizontal arrow (or, in the case of older signs, a round yellow disc with a horizontal arrow).

Pedestrians: Pedestrian crossings are marked with a blue and yellow sign showing a walking man and, as a rule, with yellow lines across the road. When approaching a pedestrian crossing, motorists must slow down sufficiently to be able to stop if there is a pedestrian in the crossing.

Railway crossings: Railway crossings are marked with a warning sign at a distance of 150 to 280 metres and with a St. Andrew's Cross at the crossing. Never rely solely on the light signals or other safety devices but keep a sharp look-out when crossing.

Parking: In towns and cities, parking is often prohibited in the centre or only permitted for a short time. Parking places are marked with a blue sign with the letter «P» (or, in the case of older signs, a yellow sign with a «P»). A round yellow disc showing a «P» with a diagonal stroke indicates no parking. A round blue disc with a red border and a diagonal red bar indicates that it is not allowed to stop except when forced to do so by traffic conditions.

GARAGES.

Detailed information may be had from the hotel porters, who will procure garage accommodation upon request. For garage the usual charge is about 4:— kr. per 24 hours or 50:— — 60:— kr. per month.

EXCURSIONS FROM STOCKHOLM

IMMEDIATE ENVIRONS

Please note that the Royal Palaces are shown at full hours only.

Haga, a royal pavilion, exquisite in every detail, from the time of Gustavus III. Open May 1—Oct. 30, Sun. 13—16, wkds. 12—16. Nov. 1—Apr. 30, Sun. 13—15. In the northern part of the lovely park are the so-called "copper tents" with the rooms formerly used as barracks. Within the grounds is also Haga Manor, the residence of H. R. H. Princess Sibylla and her children. — Tramline No. 3 and No. 15.

Ulriksdal, another royal palace beautifully situated on the shore of Edsviken, 20 minutes by motorbus. The palace dates from the 17th century and was the favourite residence of Charles XV. It is the residence of the King and the Queen.

Drottningholm, 50 minutes by steamer [dep. from Klara Mälarstrand (E 6)], 20 minutes by motorcar or motorbus, situated on an island in Lake Mälaren. It is the principal royal summer residence and the most beautiful of them all. Built in 1662—1681 in the French style adapted to a Swedish environment. An architectural creation of high rank, the interior decorative features being especially fine. Gobelin tapestries.
